

Vaccinology for Clinical & Public Health Practice

A virtual workshop

PART 1 : Mon – Thurs (6-9th December 2021)

PART 2 : Tues – Wed (14-15th December 2021)

 9am – 1pm GMT each day

Learn about

-  The scientific and technical knowledge in vaccinology
-  The role of health technology assessment in optimising resources for vaccines
-  The political economy of vaccinology
-  How to apply this knowledge to the COVID-19 pandemic

Scan Me!

Course Format

Workshop: lectures, activities, and hands-on training

Policy Symposium on 15th December 2021

Useful for

Policy makers, researchers, and health professionals

Highlighted Speakers

Prof. Mark Jit,
LSHTM, UK

Prof. Hannah Clapham,
NUS, Singapore

Prof. David Heymann,
LSHTM, UK

Prof. Paul Fine,
LSHTM, UK

Prof. Peter Smith,
LSHTM, UK

Additional speakers will be announced closer to the workshop dates

Registration Information:

You may register here or <https://forms.gle/6eV3q9wG3zWzD3KQ6>
Space is limited to 30 participants and available on a first come first serve basis.

This workshop is free of charge.

An agenda and Zoom meeting details will be shared with participants closer to the workshop dates.

Given the nature of this training, participants are expected to have at least basic statistical knowledge to engage with the teaching materials.

Participants will need access to Microsoft Excel to engage with the practical activities.

For more information, please contact
vaccinology2021@hitap.net